

Complex and High-Risk Interventional Procedures (CHIP) Fellowship Instructor in Medicine

Academic Position Summary:

The Complex and High-Risk Interventional Procedures (CHIP) fellowship at New York Presbyterian/Weill Cornell Medical Center is a one-year, non-ACGME-accredited fellowship designed to provide advanced training in percutaneous coronary intervention (PCI) strategies for patients with complex lesion subsets including chronic total occlusion (CTO) as well as associated comorbidities and/or hemodynamic instability. This advanced fellowship will hold an academic rank of Instructor in Medicine.

Application Deadline: March 1, 2025

Fellowship Curriculum:

1. CTO intervention encompassing all advanced crossing strategies
2. High-level integration of non-invasive imaging modalities for patient selection (cardiac PET and MRI) and procedural planning (coronary CT angiography)
3. Comprehensive application of intravascular imaging and physiology for PCI optimization
4. Mechanical circulatory support for high-risk PCI and management of cardiogenic shock including participation in the shock team
5. Complications prevention and management
6. Radiation safety and contrast dose management
7. Participation in weekly outpatient Complex Coronary Clinic
8. Research projects related to management of patients with refractory angina.

Following completion of the CHIP fellowship, trainees will have the necessary skills to become independent operators in complex, high-risk and CTO PCI.
